--> Comment Text :
It is not a proven safe place at Yucca Mtn. to use as a nuclear waste repository.
There are siesmic problems that will eventually be a problem.

It is not acceptable to transport nuclear waste across highways or on trains. The safest thing to do is store the waste on the sites where it has been generated.

The solution to the problem is to shut down all nuclear power plants and cease any more nuclear weapons testing (stockpile stewardship is nuclear weapons development). Wind power alone can replace all nuclear power stations in the US and at a cost much less than the costs currently associated with nuclear power generation. I personally have been employed in the wind energy industry for over 16 years so I speak with authority on this issue.

Thanks for the opportunity to voice my concerns and problem solutions.

Barry K. Miller, PE
